The Refuge, a Healing Place is a 30 day to one year residential treatment program that specializes in PTSD, Trauma, Depression, Substance Abuse and Process Addictions. We believe that chemical dependency, trauma/PTSD, mood disorders and process addictions are treatable illnesses and that recovery and remission can occur with proper treatment. The focus of the program is on physical, spiritual, and emotional healing through client centered care using a combination of addiction treatment cognitive behavioral therapy, 12 step recovery and holistic modalities and approaches. The use of education, group and individual counseling, behavior management and peer support are ways to introduce and reinforce abstinence and move the patient into a productive lifestyle with ongoing involvement in recovery. Our approach can best be described as long term, experiential treatment. We believe that trauma is centered in the nervous system. Telling the story in a nature setting like The Refuge, and not a hospital setting, helps the nervous system process the trauma and lessen trauma reactivity.

S.A.F.E. INTENSIVE is a comprehensive residential treatment program for adolescents and adults who engage in repeated self-injurious behavior. The multidisciplinary treatment team uses individual, group, and family therapies to support and empower individuals to make healthier choices when dealing with emotional distress. Clients participate in programming 7 days a week with an average length of stay of approximately 30 days depending on individual needs and treatment plan for each client. The program is voluntary and, therefore, clients must be motivated to stop the self-destructive behavior. Upon admission a safety contract is signed, in which the client agrees to refrain from any self-injurious behaviors for the entire length of treatment. This includes, but is not limited to, direct forms of self-injury such as cutting and burning, as well as indirect forms of self-injury such as restricting or purging food. If a client engages in any form of self-injury while in the program, the treatment team will determine if a written warning, probation, or discharge is warranted. Premature discharges, transfers, and extensions of programming, are determined by the treatment team and are based on individual needs and quality of participation in the program. S.A.F.E. EXPRESSIONS is a partial hospitalization program for adolescents who self-injure. Adolescent Expressions differs from the 30-day Intensive program in the following ways. Inpatient criteria require that the client has made an honest commitment to want to stop self-injurious behavior. Adolescent Expressions criteria allows for ambivalence towards having an honest commitment to stopping self-injurious behavior. The goal is to stop self-injury, however, for many, the focus will be on getting the client to the point of making that commitment.

Specializes in treating PTSD, and Dissociative Disorders. Our program also treats self-injury, borderline personality disorder, depressive disorders, and anxiety disorders if the client has a trauma history in addition to these related symptoms. Intensive Trauma Therapy offers a brief intensive outpatient therapy to adults and children. At ITT we offer one-week and two-week programs that provide an effective and cost-efficient way to address the trauma-related disorders. Unlike other programs in a hospital or partial hospital setting, our treatment is in the less restrictive environment of an outpatient clinic. An initial screening can be done free of charge. ITT accepts clients who have been given several different diagnoses and of them seems to be appropriate, have been disappointed with inpatient programs that focus on group therapy instead of individual sessions, hear voices that are trauma-related, feel that they on a plateau in their current therapy or their therapist does not have the specific skills to treat trauma and/or those whose medication has not relieved their symptoms. We do not take people who are actively using alcohol or drugs as a way to manage their symptoms but will consider those with substance abuse histories on a case by case basis. The clinic also treats people who live within a reasonable driving distance of Morgantown WV but who, for various reasons, can not come for the full program. Clients can be seen for appointments on a weekly basis to complete the processing of their traumatic experiences using the same treatment methods over a longer period of time. The same admission criteria as the intensive outpatient program apply.
